English Takes Lead
By 1 in Keefer CupBy Ben Gieser
Special to The Washington Post

Arlene English of Congressional, playing in the final group of the day, bogeyed the final hole but finished with net 71 to take the first round lead of the 36-hole Women's District Golf Association Keefer Cup yesterday at Chevy Chase club.

English topped her tee shot on the par-4 18th hole, hit a five-wood second shot from heavy rough and struck her three-wood third shot onto the green, four feet from the cup. She missed the putt and settled for a one-shot lead with 80-9-71.

At 36, English is a graduate student in communications at American University and wears braces on her teeth. "I'm doing everything late in life," she said.

Including playing good golf. Before her shaky finish, English had made five pars and a birdie on the back nine. "I got excited about some good pars I made . . . and that made me swing too quickly on the final hole," she said.

Lorraine Elder four-putted her last hole, the slick ninth green, but made four birdies and was tied for second at net 72 with Army Navy clubmate Fran Schultz. Elder shot 79-7-72 while Schultz, who had a strong chipping and putting round, carded 80-8-72.

Elder tied new WDGA member Angie Munno of Argyle for low gross, 79. Munno had no birdies but made 12 pars. Munno left the course to attend her final day of classes in her junior year at the University of Maryland, where she majors in nuclear engineering.

Munno was tied at net 75 with Bobbie Kane (87-12-75) and Nancy Hollenbeck (83-8-75), both of Army Navy, which had seven golfers among the top 18.

Carol Hawley of the host club was fourth at 85-12-73, followed by Doris Carpenter of Lakewood, 86-12-74.

The final round starts this morning at 8:30.

Hawley Wins Keefer Playoff

By Ben Gieser
Special to The Washington Post

Carol Hawley of the host Chevy Chase Club received a good-luck telephone call from one of her five grandchildren and then won the 51st Women's District Golf Association Keefer Cup in a playoff yesterday.

Hawley's bogey on the second hole of sudden death was good enough to defeat Fran Schultz of Army Navy after both finished with 36-hole net scores of 147.

Hawley added an 86 yesterday to her first-round 85 and subtracted her 12 handicap each day to arrive at her total. Schultz, who has an 8 handicap, shot 83 yesterday and 80 in Wednesday's opening round. It was Hawley's first WDGA victory.

Hawley maintained she doesn't "have the nerve" for golf, but her name will nevertheless be inscribed on the $10,000 sterling silver trophy.

It was Schultz who came unraveled in the playoff. After they tied the first hole the two golfers went to the long par-4 second hole. Schultz half-topped her tee shot, topped her second shot, and finished with triple bogey 7. Hawley was on the green in three and two-putted from 20 feet.

Hawley appeared out of the running when she was nine over par after eight holes. But then she righted herself with her only birdie on the day on the par-3 ninth hole, where she laced her tee shot two feet from the cup and sank the short putt for deuce.

Hawley started the day two strokes behind first-round leader Arlene English of Congressional and one behind Army Navy clubmates Schultz and Lorraine Elder. English faltered with a four-putt green for a triple bogey on the front nine, and then took a water-induced quadruple bogey on a back-nine hole, finishing six shots back at net 153.

Elder, from Florida State, also wilted. She double bogeyed the ninth hole for the second straight day and finished with 83 and a two-day net 148, one stroke back.

Angie Munno of Argyle added 82 to a first-round 79 and won low gross with 161.

Mrs. Hawley wins Keefer Cup Playoff

Mrs. Charles B. Hawley of the Chevy Chase Club won the recent 50th anniversary competition for the Keefer Cup in a sudden-death playoff over her home course.

Carol Hawley, former Chevy Chase club champion, defeated Fran Schultz of Army Navy C.C. on the second hole of the play-off after they had tied for the lead with net scores of 147 for 36 holes.

Mrs. Hawley shot 171-24—147 and Mrs. Schultz 163-16—147.

Arlene English of Congressional led after the first round with 80-9—71.

Mrs. Frank Royer Keefer of Chevy Chase Club, president of the W.D.G.A. for three years, 1930-32, put up the beautiful silver trophy during her final year as president. Winner the first two years was Mrs. Alma Steinner.

Mrs. Keefer, wife of Gen. Frank Keefer of the U.S. Army, specified that competition be played annually at Chevy Chase, 36 holes, at full handicap.

Names of some of the well-known women golfers on the trophy and the year they won include: Mrs. Edward Ferriday, 1953 and 1961; Gerry Kush, 1954; Virginia Kreuzburg, 1955; Helen Konopa, 1958 and 1966; Rita Weitzen, 1964; Rebecca Doman, 1967, 1972 and 1976; Nancy Hollenbeck, 1975; Sue Keeney, 1977; Betty Looney, 1978; Jody Evans, 1979; Lois Holzapple, 1980, and Kim Williams, 1981. Williams is in college and could not defend the title.

• Linda Guglielmi, a member of Congressional's state championship team, defeated her captain, Pam Smyth, on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff for the Corby Cup for Class A player at Columbia.

They had tied after 18 holes with 81-11 — 70 by Guglielmi and 80-10 — 70 by Smyth. Guglielmi won with a par on the second extra hole after using a stroke to tie the first hole.

A third Congressional team member, Arlene English, shot 79 for low gross prize. Columbia champion Beth Carpenter had 80 and last year's Corby Cup winner, Nancy Hollenbeck of Army Navy, 81.

The Corby Cup was placed in competition annually at Columbia by Muriel Clark Corby, a Columbia member, in 1928 in the first of her two years as president of the Women's District Golf Association.

Virginians Ready for County's Best

Two young Virginia women golfers came into Montgomery County last week and gave notice that they are ready to challenge the county's top players, who have dominated women's golf in the area the past few years. Champions Sally Voss, Karen Jones and Jane Abood were not in town to face the challenge, but they surely must have got the message.

The new faces on the women's golf scene belong to Lorraine Elder and Amy Geithner. Elder, 18, of Army-Navy Country Club, shot 74 at Montgomery Village last Friday to win the women's division of the Harden & Weaver benefit golf tournament for Children's Hospital. She beat the Montgomery Village veteran, Sharon Briggs, by a single stroke.

Geithner, 22, of the Country Club of Fairfax, shot a four-under-par 71 at Lakewood on Monday to win the qualifying medal in this week's Women's District championship. She played late and finished long after Briggs had posted a 77 to turn the tables on Elder, who shot 78, and it appeared Briggs might be the medalist.

Elder, a Florida State sophomore with a six handicap, is rather new to the area, having come from Hawaii two years ago.

Elder and Briggs played together in the District qualifier and were tied at the turn with 40. Elder birdied 10 and 11 and held a one-stroke lead after 16 holes. But a two-shot swing at the 135-yard 17th, where Briggs knocked in a curling three-foot birdie putt and Elder three-putted, gave Briggs her one-shot edge.

Meanwhile, Geithner was still on the course birdieing the first, fifth and sixth holes for a three-under-par front nine of 34, and got another birdie at 16 for her 71. She had no bogeys.

Geithner, who graduated last year from Wake Forest, where she played four years on the women's team, is studying for a masters at Maryland. She twice lost to Voss in the District championship and last year qualified for the USGA Women's Open. She is the perennial women's champion at her Fairfax club.

At 22, ready to challenge county's top women players

The Women's District championship begins Monday at Lakewood with the champions of the past three years absent. Congressional's Sally Voss, who won last year and three years ago, sent in an entry but had to withdraw because of medical school obligations in San Francisco. Argyle's Karen Jones, the 1980 champion, will be at Ohio State playing in the AIAW collegiate championship, as will Jane Abood and other collegians from the area.

WDGA Medalist Geithner Wins First-Round Match

By Ben Gieser
Special to The Washington Post

Medalist Amy Geithner of Fairfax defeated Arlene English of Congressional, 3 and 2, in the first round of the Women's District Golf Association championship yesterday at Lakewood.

The past two years, Geithner, 22, had lost in the early rounds to eventual champion Sally Voss, but Voss is not entered this year.

"It would be nice to see how my game would stand up against hers this year," said Geithner, studying for her master's degree in exercise physiology at the University of Maryland. "There are a lot of good players left out here, though."

Geithner was three over par in eliminating English, but yesterday's windy conditions made play much more difficult than in Monday's qualifying, in which she shot 71, four under women's par. Geithner took a three-hole advantage when English hit her third shot into a creek on the sixth hole, and Geithner went four up with a birdie on the seventh hole.

English pulled within two holes with a birdie at eight and a par at nine.

Geithner, a seven-times women's club champion at Country Club of Fairfax who played four years on the Lake Forest College team, regained a three-hole advantage with par on the 10th hole. English hit her drive into pine trees and took a bogey at the 10th.

Geithner clinched the match at the 16th hole with par after leaving her 40-foot birdie putt on the lip of the cup.

Angie Munno, an engineering student at the University of Maryland from Argyle, curled in an eight-foot birdie putt on the 18th green to edge Laura Miller of Bethesda, 1 up.

Long hitter Kim Williams of Bethesda, who went to the quarterfinals of the recent women's North-South Amateur, defeated Blanca Fortin of Columbia, 5 and 3. Williams injured her shoulder on a water slide in Ocean City Friday and it pains her when she hits iron shots.

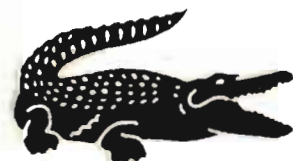

In other matches, Lorraine Elder of Army Navy came from behind to defeat Pat Thurner of Congressional, 2 and 1; former finalist Diane Rankin of Montgomery Village beat Kim Grace of Army Navy, 4 and 3; Sharon Briggs of Montgomery Village eliminated Rita Chadwick of Lakewood, 3 and 2; Fran Schultz defeated Army Navy clubmate Betty Looney, 3 and 2, and Shawn McCullough of Tantallon beat Fran Gudely of Springfield, 4 and 2. Gudely knocked her five-wood second shot into the cup for eagle on the first hole.

In today's quarterfinals, Geithner will play Munno at 9:42 a.m., followed by Elder vs. Rankin, Briggs vs. McCullough and Schultz vs. Williams.

Patty Berg will give a free clinic today at 3 p.m. at Lakewood.

Geithner, Williams Finalists

By Ben Gieser

Special to The Washington Post

Medalist Amy Geithner of Fairfax defeated Diane Rankin of Montgomery Village, 4 and 3, and Kim Williams of Bethesda eliminated Sharon Briggs of Montgomery Village, 5 and 3, in yesterday's semifinals of the Women's District Golf Association championships at Lakewood.

The sixth hole marked the beginning of the end for Rankin, who was ahead in the match, 1 up, at the time. She tried to reach the par-5 hole with her second shot, but her ball went into a creek in front of the green. Rankin took off her shoes and socks, waded in and tried to hit the ball out of the six-inch-deep water, but with no luck. She ended up conceding the hole to Geithner.

Both were on the green on the next hole in two shots but, as Rankin drew her putter back for her 30-foot first putt, a nearby maintenance vehicle backfired. She left the ball four feet short of the hole and ended up losing to Geithner's par.

Williams struggled against Briggs, but got her big driving game in order and pulled away on the back nine.

Geithner Gains WDGA Semis

By Ben Gieser

Special to The Washington Post

Medalist Amy Geithner of Fairfax used her superiority on the greens to defeat Angie Munno of Argyle, 3 and 1, yesterday in the quarterfinals of the Women's District Golf Association championships at Lakewood.

In other second-round matches, Sharon Briggs of Montgomery Village was too strong for Shawn McCullough of Tantallon, 5 and 4; Kim Williams of Bethesda held off Fran Schultz of Army Navy, 2 and 1, and 1978 WDGA finalist Diane Rankin of Montgomery Village eliminated Lorraine Elder of Army Navy, 2 and 1.

This morning's semifinals show Geithner versus Rankin at 9:36 a.m. followed by Briggs versus Williams at 9:42.

Geithner, a 22-year-old graduate student at the University of Maryland, three-putted the second hole but took only one putt on each of the next four holes for a 2-up lead.

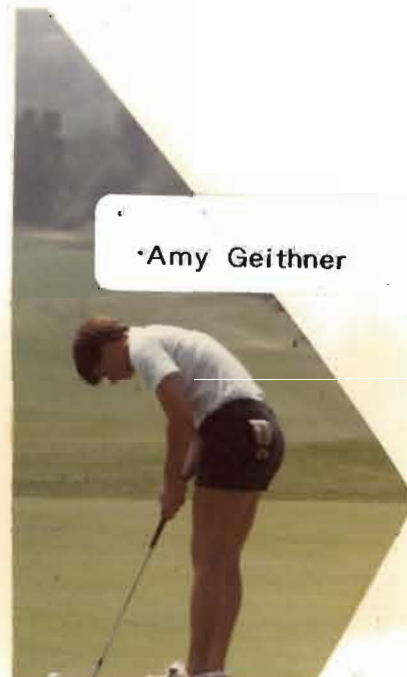

Munno, a senior engineering student at Maryland, came within one hole with a par at the seventh hole. She appeared ready to even the match when she hit her approach shot three feet from the cup on the par-5 eighth hole, but earned only a tying birdie when Geithner dropped in a 20-foot putt.

After both parred the ninth hole, Munno was again frustrated at the par-5 10th. She hit the stick with her 40-yard third shot and her ball stopped four feet from the hole. But after Geithner two-putted from 50 feet for par, Munno missed her short putt and remained one hole down.

Geithner regained a 2-up lead at the par-3 12th, when Munno three-putted from 50 feet, and halved the next hole in bogey when Munno again three-putted. Geithner ended the match with par at the 17th.

CHAMPIONSHIP FLIGHT - FINALS

Friday, June 18, 1982

• Bethesda's Kim Williams attributed her defeat in the final of the Women's District championship to a combination of Amy Geithner's fine play and Williams' poor putting.

Geithner, a Wake Forest graduate from Country Club of Fairfax, was two-under par in defeating Williams, 4 and 2, at Lakewood. A Mississippi State sophomore, Williams lost the match after she had squared it with birdies on the ninth and 10th holes.

Winners of other flight finals — First: Jeane Tiernan, Army Navy, df. Cathy Eyre, Reston. Second: Carmen Oelsner, Bretton Woods, df. Cathy Warren, Washingtonian. Third: Harriet Noye, Lakewood, df. Pat Leder, Congressional. Fourth: Pat Zirkle, Army Navy, df. Betty Hall, Brooke Manor.

TOURNAMENT OF CHAMPIONS 1982

Congressional Country Club

Sally Voss is home from San Francisco Medical School this week and tomorrow will play in the Tournament of Champions, the District Women's Golf Association's closing event, at her home course, Congressional. The former District, State and Middle Atlantic champion has not competed locally this year. She will graduate next May.

Sally Voss (l), a three-time District champion, played head-to-head with her successor Amy Geithner (r) with Geithner winning the match at Congressional.

Liza Abood (l) of Kenwood and Sharon Briggs of Montgomery Village both shot scores of 79 in the tournament of champions at Chevy Chase Club.

Club champions Liza Abood of Kenwood and Sharon Briggs of Montgomery Village both shot 79 at Chevy Chase Club to register the lowest scores in the District Women's Golf Association third annual tournament of champions.

• Sally Voss, the 1981 Women's District champion, played head-to-head in a twosome against her successor, Amy Geithner, in the Women's District Golf Association's final event, the Tournament of Champions, at Congressional last week.

It was the only local event the San Francisco medical student and Congressional member was able to enter this year. She would have beaten Geithner had she not faltered and the reigning champion not played sensationally on the last four holes.

The three-time champion shot the front nine in even par 37 to take a three-stroke advantage over Geithner, a Wake Forest graduate who is studying for a Ph.D. in exercise physiology at Maryland.

Geithner birdied the long 15th and parred the next two holes to cut Voss's lead to one stroke as the former champion, using a borrowed driver, found the trees on several tee shots.

At the 117-yard 18th, she put her tee shot 18 inches from the hole for a sure birdie while Voss was confronted with a 20-foot putt she had to make to retain her one-stroke lead. Rather than lag the putt for a par and a tie, Voss went for the birdie and sent the ball four feet passed. She then missed coming back.

Geithner's tap-in gave her 40-37 — 77 to Voss's 37-41 — 78.

Angie Munno, a nuclear engineering student at Maryland, Liza Abood, Maryland graduate, and Pat Thurner, Congressional member, had 84.

The tournament trophy went to the low net winner, Midge Chiles of International, who shot 88-16 — 72. Three tied for second with net 75 — Cecelia Escobar, Bretton Woods; Linda Guglielmi, Congressional and Chris Cates, International.

Congressional Wins Women's District Title

Joe Gambatese

Gambatese
on Golf

Congressional won its second Women's District Division I team championship in three years last week by defeating Manor, 7½-1½, in final-round matches at Bethesda C.C. Last month, the Congressional men won the Maryland State inter-club championship, giving the River Road club two titles.

Until the Congressional women won the 1980 District title, breaking a string of 11 straight championships by Army Navy, they had not won a championship since 1936. Their only other title was in 1931.

Congressional entered the final round with only a one-point lead over Argyle and two points over defending champion Army Navy. But while the victors were having an easy time with last-place Manor, Argyle played well with the help of Maryland champion Karen Jones but couldn't pick up more than 6½ points from Army Navy. Jones was home from Oklahoma State.

Final standings: Congressional, 36½; Argyle, 34½; Columbia, 30½; Army Navy, 29½; Brooke Manor, 20½; Bethesda, 19½; and Manor, 18.

Final match results: Congressional d. Manor, 7½-1½; Argyle d. Army Navy, 6½-2½; and Columbia d. Brooke Manor, 7½-1½.

How Congressional got its points: Arlene English and Ann Templeton shut out Pat Tyrrell and Selia Barber, 3-0; Pat Thurner and Linda Guglielmi followed with another 3-0 win over Marge Carbo and Elda Winslow; and Ann Heuer and Rey Matthews tied Marion Booth and Louise Foley, 1½-1½, after losing the front nine.

Matthews was substituting from Congressional's captain, Pam Smyth, who was suffering from a sore neck and shoulder.

The Thurner-Guglielmi pair won all of their six matches, garnering 15½ points out of a possible 18 for the tournament.

It was bound to happen sooner or later: the Abood sisters finished one-two in a major championship. Liza, the older, who will coach golf at B-CC High School this year, came from behind to win the two-day Lillian Payne Memorial trophy at Congressional with 75-77 — 152.

Jane, who plays No. 1 for Penn State, took second with 77-78 — 155. Both play at Kenwood and will soon vie for the club title.

Michelle Mackall of Washingtonian, the first-day leader with a 73 on the easier Gold Course, ballooned to a 91 on the championship Blue Course the next day for 164.

Bonnie Johnson of Baltimore, who won last year, took third with 77-80 — 157. Tied for fourth at 158 were Angela Munno of Argyle and Sharon Briggs of Montgomery Village.

Women's District champion Amy Geithner had 171 and former Maryland and District champion Karen Jones, 160.

Kathy Marren of Washingtonian and Nancy Hollenbeck of Army Navy tied for low net prize with 142.

Munno Aims for a Nuclear Career

Joe Gambatese

You may see a nuclear engineer shooting pars and birdies on the Ladies' PGA Tour in a few years if Angela Munno achieves one of her ambitions.

"Hopefully I can give it a try," the 20-year-old nuclear engineering senior at the University of Maryland of her pro ambitions said after shooting 33-41 — 74 to win the low individual prize in a Middle Atlantic PGA pro-lady tournament at Piney Branch Golf Club, near Baltimore, last Friday.

She posted another nine-hole score of 33 three weeks before on the front nine of Bretton Woods, winning the championship consolation of the Maryland women's amateur, 1 up, from Deirdre Anderson of Baltimore.

Munno and her partner Lil Jew also contributed an important three points last week in Argyle Country Club's defeat of Washingtonian, 6½-5½, for its third Maryland State interclub team championship. They defeated Judy Koenick and Pertie Dietz, 3-0.

Former Maryland and District champion Karen Jones and Melly Tucker also got three points for Argyle, defeating Pat Bryan and Cathy Marren, 3-0. Veteran Gerry Cush and Peggy Shortstrom gave Argyle its winning margin by taking a half point in their 2½-½ loss to Carol Hasegawa and Brenda Turner.

In the fourth match, Washingtonians's Carol Davies Lillie and Rosemary Marlowe took all three points from Cloey Hardesty and Jackie Shiff.

Argyle, champions in 1976 and '77, defeated Tantallon, Lakewood and Baltimore CC before meeting Washingtonian in the final. Washingtonian's early round victims were Green Spring Valley, Bretton Woods and the 1980 champions, Kenwood, which had upset defending champion Congressional.

The matches were not played in 1978 and '79.

Munno's two-under par 33 at Piney Branch included four birdies and two bogeys. She also birdied the 10th green to go three under par, but then encountered two double-bogeys and two bogeys for a back nine of 41.

Earlier this year, Munno had the low gross score, 79-82 — 161, in the Keefer Cup at Chevy Chase Club and last year she qualified for the U.S. Women's Amateur at Portland, Ore.

Before her family joined Argyle last fall, Munno played at the University of Maryland where her father, Frank, is professor of nuclear engineering.

She gets most of her teaching from her father, with whom she spends many hours on the Argyle practice tee, according to pro Kent Keith. She also got some help and a lot of encouragement last year from Randy Hoffman and Ronnie Scales of the Maryland pro staff.

Arlene English, a member of Congressional's state championship team, won the 10th annual Ladies' Oldsmobile Open at Tantallon Monday with a low net score of 73-10 — 63 despite a double-bogey on the ninth hole.

Shawn McCullough, a new member of Tantallon from Illinois, won low gross with 75.

Some 1300 women who attempted to qualify from 46 area golf clubs contributed more than $6000 in entry fees which went to Heroes, Inc., a fund for the benefit of families of police and fire fighters killed in the line of duty. Each club qualified three players who competed at Tantallon.

Jack Pohanka, chairman of the tournament for the Washington area Oldsmobile dealers, said more than $60,000 has been raised for Heroes, Inc. over the past decade.

Fran Schultz of Army-Navy took second low gross with 77 and Elsie Suess of Brooke Manor, third with 81.

Knowledge of 'The Rules' Can Help in Many Ways

Special to the Journal

Most golfers don't realize that it pays to know The Rules of Golf because they can help as much as penalize you. Two cases in point:

- Arnold Palmer won his first Masters in 1958 because he knew he was entitled to a free drop when his ball became embedded in a mound behind Augusta National's 12th green. An official on the spot told him he would have to play the ball as it lay or take a penalty to drop because the ball was in the "rough."

He scored a double-bogey by playing the ball as it lay, then took a free drop with a second ball and got a par 3. On appeal, the rules committee decided that Palmer was right, and that his official score for that hole was a three. Thus, Palmer was able to win the Masters by one stroke instead of losing by one if he had accepted the original ruling.

- A few years ago a player on the PGA Tour putted his ball too hard and it rolled into a pond bordering the green. Knowing he had to keep the spot where the ball crossed the margin of the pond between him and the hole, he took a penalty drop on the other side of the pond. Obviously upset, he muffed his next shot, dumping it into the water again and winding up with a nine for the hole.

What the player didn't realize was that the rules permit another option. He could have taken a stroke-and-distance penalty and re-putted from the original spot instead of playing back over the water.

This subject comes to mind because of a rules seminar sponsored by the Women's District Golf Association at Columbia last week. Rules committee chairman Nancy Hollenbeck took the audience of almost 100 women on a mythical round of golf, using diagrams of 18 holes from different courses to explain the rules applicable to situations players might experience on those holes.

In opening the seminar, WDGA president Jan Beatty reminded the women that knowing the rules is not only a must in order to play the game correctly, it can also be a "great advantage."

Hollenbeck is an eight-handicap player at Army Navy who spent 21 years in the Navy and came out a lieutenant commander. A referee in field hockey and basketball, she has attended USGA-PGA schools to qualify as a golf rules official.

Key points Hollenbeck made during her presentation about rules that can be helpful include:

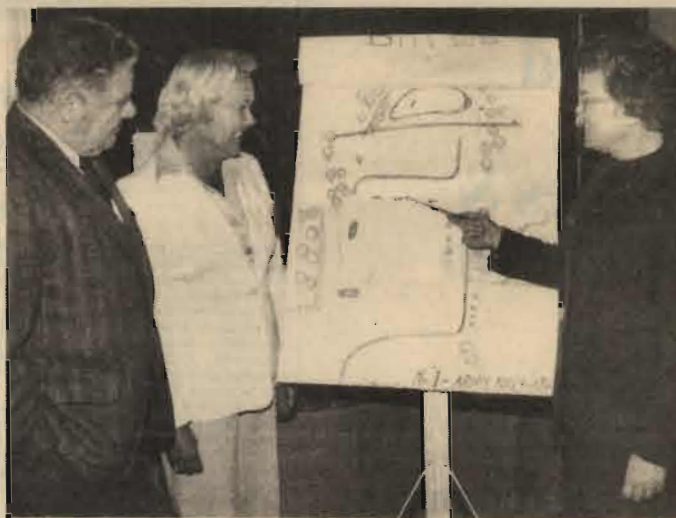

- Always place a mark on your ball when you start so you can identify it. It's not enough just to use a ball brand or number different from what the others in your group are using. Someone playing another hole might knock an identical ball near yours. If you can't prove which ball is yours, you have a "lost" golf ball.

- Likewise, when playing a provisional or second ball, use a ball with different marking in case you find both near each other. You have to know which you played first, and which second, or your ball is also "lost."

- When checking your swing in order to get relief from an obstruction, you must use the club with which you intend to play the shot in determining the nearest point of relief. However, in measuring the additional club length of relief to which you are entitled from that point, you may use the longest club in your bag, the driver.

- When taking relief from, say, ground under repair, you must take total, not partial, relief. You may not, for instance, drop out close by in order to get a better angle on the hole, and then stand in the ground under repair to play the stroke. Sometimes you are better off playing the ball as it lies rather than drop in an undesirable area. For that reason, you shouldn't lift your ball until you are certain you want to.

- When dropping out of a lateral water hazard, you may drop on either side. Sometimes, it's to your advantage to drop on the side opposite from where it entered the hazard.

Nancy Hollenbeck uses a diagram of Army Navy's first hole to point out a rule problem to Jan Beatty and Lester Barker.

You are entitled to relief from casual water in a bunker or on the putting green, if water intervenes between your ball and the hole. A ball resting in water in a bunker may be dropped out with one stroke penalty, or dropped in another part of the bunker without penalty.

- There is no penalty for someone to hold the flagstick up so that you can see where the hole is while you play a blind shot.

- There is no penalty in stroke play for playing out of turn. In a singles match, your opponent may, if he chooses, ask you to replay the stroke. In a four-ball match, he may ask you to replay the stroke only if it occurred on the tee or the putting green.

- In four-ball competition, any player may have any ball lifted and marked on the putting green. A ball that is struck by another ball must be replaced. In a singles match, the player whose ball is struck has the option of leaving it where it came to rest.

Regarding penalties, a general rule to remember is that, unless otherwise specified, the penalty in stroke play is two strokes and in match play loss of a hole.

Columbia's Lester Barker, one of the country's top-ranked rules officials who assisted Hollenbeck, brought to the seminar two volumes of decisions interpreting the 41 rules published by the USGA.

"Most rules violations are unintentional and the result of ignorance of the rules," he believes.

One of the most common violations is asking another player, not your partner, what club he used on a shot before you are about to play a similar one, usually done on the tee of a par 3 hole. Another is agreeing with an opponent to waive a rule, for which both players can be disqualified.

In an article poking fun at the complexity of golf rules, Charles Price, former Kenwood club champion and at the time editor of Golf magazine, told about an incident that occurred when he was playing in a pro-am tournament at Bethesda Country Club in 1946.

On one hole, Price hooked his tee shot and his partner, George Dittenbaugh, Kenwood pro, hit one of his rare slices to the opposite side of the hole. Because of a gallery between them, neither could see the other and they hit their second shots simultaneously.

Believe it or not, the balls collided in mid-air.

"I never did discover what the rules had to say about this situation," Price concluded.

Barker found the answer in Decision 75-18 under Rule 11-4 in Volume One of the USGA's Decisions on the Rules of Golf. Both players must replay their shots and take a two-stroke penalty.

Bob Benson, the District Golf Association's rules committee chairman, will conduct a seminar on tournament management at Kenwood Saturday for committee members and volunteers who will be assisting in the conduct of the association's tournaments this summer.

Kim Williams Takes a Mini-Tour

Kim Williams of Potomac is skipping this semester at Mississippi State to play on the women's professional golf mini-tour called Group Fore. Her purpose: To find out how good her golf game really is and whether she would like life on the pro tour.

The six-foot Bethesda Country Club champion is playing in San Jose, Calif., this week in the first of nine 54-hole tournaments in which she will compete, winding up in Redlands, Calif., on Nov. 11.

Group Fore competitors are mostly professionals who won less than $15,000 on the Ladies' PGA Tour last year. They play for $10,000 in prize money. Williams will play as an amateur eligible for merchandise prizes.

She has been in Hemet, Calif., several weeks practicing while staying at the home of the father of Dave King, District Amateur champion and a Bethesda member.

"Kim just wants to find out early what her chances are and whether she would like playing the tour," her father, Doug, said on returning from California last week. "She's probably two or three years away from her potential, but she needs competition to reach it."

The suggestion that Williams play on the Group Fore tour was made by Mary Alice Canney, assistant pro at Chantilly National.

"She wants to find out how good she is," Canney said. "This is one way to do it and also get a taste of tour life. There's no competition for women pros in the Washington area."

Bethesda pro Jim Folks and Bill Strausbaugh of Columbia, one of the country's outstanding teachers, have both worked with Williams.

"I feel she has a good chance of making it," Strausbaugh believes. "She is strong and long (240 yards off the tee) with lots of talent. She needs more work on direction and course management."

A new group of young girl golfers who may be the Sally Vosses and Karen Joneses of tomorrow is emerging from the junior girls program of the Women's District Golf Association run for the past two years by Lois Ledbetter of Lakewood Country Club.

Two — Clare Dolan, 15, of Montgomery Village and Sarah LeBrun, 16, who won the District girls' championship this year and last, though living in Baltimore — already are good enough to compete effectively in adult women's tournaments and do.

In the recent Maryland Women's Amateur championship at Bretton Woods, for instance, both won first-round matches against adults who played in the U.S. Women's Amateur in Colorado Springs, Colo., this week. Dolan beat Angie Munno of Argyle and LeBrun disposed of Baltimore's Eileen ('Beans') Kelly before being eliminated themselves in the second round.

Leading players among the older girls, 16- and 17-year-olds, include Julie Healander of Manor, who this year has won the Berry-Diggs Cup and Margaret Allen Cup; Carlene Cassidy of Manor, who won the Middle Atlantic championship; and Kim Staples of Evergreen, who won the Helen Goldstein Cup; and Jeanne Warrington of Manor, who won the adult-junior tournament with Mary Lou Amatucci of Argyle as a partner.

Others are Columbia's Leland Ingham, who won the Berry-Diggs Cup last year; Siobhan Foody and Kristen Forrester of Congressional; and Lauren Lindsey of Kenwood.

Coming along in the 14-15 class are Mary Duke of Congressional, who won her age-class in the Middle Atlantic; Liz Fry of the University of Maryland course who won this year's WDGA Cup; Eileen McCarthy, Suzan Charleton and Nancy Davis of Greencastle; Shannon Hanley of Congressional; Amy Longson of Manor; and Tricia Gates of Columbia. Gates teamed with Cassidy to win the better-ball of twosome tournament and last year won the Margaret Allen Cup. There is also Beth Staples, who teamed with sister Kim to finish second in the better-ball of twosome.

Girls have to be at least 13 and earn a USGA handicap to participate in the District program. Some choose to play only in nine-hole tournaments until they get older.

Among the 13-year-olds just feeling their way are two Congressional girls, Amy Hook, who won her age-class in the Middle Atlantic, and Susan Hilliard, who finished second; and Lisa Lindsey of Kenwood.

This week's tournament, the Helen Goldstein Cup at Indian Spring, was won by Kim Staples, daughter of PGA professional Charles Staples, operator of Evergreen and other golf courses, on her 17th birthday. She shot 79 to beat Leslye Johnson, also 17, by three strokes and Fry by four. Johnson's father, Willis, is head professional at Green Hill on the Eastern Shore. Healander won low net with 66.

In the nine-hole group, Hooks shot 49 and Hilliard 56 for first and second. Duke won low net, with 35, and Charleton was second at 36.

The Helen Goldstein Cup honors the memory of Mrs. Harry D. Goldstein, an Indian Spring member who was first vice president of the Women's District Golf Association when she was killed in an auto accident last year. Debbie Zahand of Westwood was the first winner of the cup a year ago.

14-Year-Old Shoots a 77 At Columbia

By JOE GAMBATESE
Special to The Journal

Tricia Gates of Columbia, who turned 14 just last month, shot two over ladies' par, 40-37 — 77, over her home course to win the President's Bowl of the Women's District Golf Association for girls 17-under. It was the last of eight events on the junior girls' 1982 program.

Gates finished two strokes ahead of another fine 14-year-old player, Liz Fry of the University of Maryland golf course, who shot 79 and received low net prize with 79-9 — 70.

This was the first time that Gates, who has a 19 handicap, has broken 80. Her five-wood second shot on the 392-yard final hole carried to the green and stopped one foot from the hole for a tap-in eagle three.

Earlier this year, Gates won the better-ball twosome tournament with Carlene Cassidy, 17, of Manor as her partner. Last year she won the Margaret Allen Cup, a net event, and the 13-under age class in the Middle Atlantic Golf Association junior championship.

Gates, who graduated from Our Lady of Lourdes and will enter Georgetown Visitation next month, comes from a golfing family. Her father, William, and mother, Dorothy, both play as do her older sister, Danne, and brothers Charles, 21, and Steve, 18. Mrs. Gates plays on Columbia's women's interclub team and Charles won the Maryland two-man team championship last May with clubmate Rich Holland as his partner.

Other scores in the President's Bowl:
Carlene Cassidy, Manor, 87; Beth Staples, Evergreen, 91; Kim Staples, Evergreen, 93; Kristin Forrester, Congressional, 95; Julie Hea-lander, Manor, 103; Eileen McCarthy, Greencastle, 106; Amy Longson, Manor, 112; and Nancy Davis, Greencastle, 122.

In the nine-hole division, Amy Hooks of Congressional won with 49 and Jennifer Menafee, also of Congressional, won low net, 57-24 — 33.

Other nine-hole scores: Danne Gates, Columbia, 54; Mary Duke, Congressional, 59; Susan Hilliard, Congressional, net 35; Melissa Hanstad, Kenwood, net 41; and Siobhan Foody, Congressional, net 50.

TRICIA GATES, 14, of Chevy Chase, is shown with the President's Bowl presented by Mrs. Robert E. Beatty, president of the Women's District Golf Association. Tricia was awarded the bowl for winning the President's Bowl tournament for junior girls with a score of 77, two over ladies' par, at Columbia Country Club, where the Gates family are members. Her round was climaxed by an eagle three on the 18th hole. Liz Fry, also 14, of the University of Maryland golf course, was second with 79.

Girl Leads Seneca To First State Title

By Mike Fanning
Special to The Washington Post

Sophomore Clare Dolan, the only girl on the Seneca Valley varsity golf team, led the Screaming Eagles to their first Maryland title yesterday at the University of Maryland.

Dolan finished with a two-day total of 165 with rounds of 83 and 82. Chris Nelson (167), J.R. Shassteen (168) and John Nelson (169) contributed to a team-low 669.

Don Slebodnik of High Point captured individual honors with a two-day total of 147, four shots better than Frederick's Charlie Costello. Playing on his own course was no small advantage for Slebodnik, who had a two-stroke lead after the first round and yesterday shot one-over-par 73.

"We played as a team and we wanted to win as a team," said Dolan who played from the ladies' tees. She used only 24 putts last week at Poolesville in a round of 72 that led Seneca to the Montgomery County championship.

"I played the course, not my opponents," said Slebodnik, who tied for fifth place in the state tournament last year as a junior.

Cobby Webb of Paint Branch, considered to be Slebodnik's toughest challenger, trailed by just two strokes after 27 holes. However, he lost ground on the back nine yesterday and finished with a 79, good for a third-place score of 155.

"I told them not to go for birdies, just stick together and we'd have a great shot at the championship," said Seneca Valley Coach Bob Turnbull, whose best previous team finish was seventh place in 1979. "This is a very young team (two juniors and two sophomores), but they have a lot of talent and worked hard. They practiced their way to this title."

Wootton finished second with 682, followed by Paint Branch (689), Surrattsville (690) and Whitman (698).

For SV's Clare Dolan, golf is 'all business'

By Sean Burke
Sentinel Correspondent

It has reached a point now where Seneca Valley golf coach Bob Turnbull isn't surprised with anything Clare Dolan does.

Therefore, last Thursday when Dolan shot a one under par (from the women's tees) 72 in the county team golf championship at Poolesville Public Course, Turnbull wasn't at all surprised.

"That was her best score of the year, but it's nothing I didn't anticipate," said Turnbull. "Clare has a lot of confidence and she truly believes in herself. She knows what she wants to do with each and every shot."

Dolan may or may not know what she wants to do with every shot. But once she gets on the green she certainly knows the name of the game: put the ball in the hole.

During her 72, Dolan had 24 putts, including just 10 on the back nine. On the professional tour, the putting average per 18 holes is 28.4 putts.

"Most of the best women have outstanding short games and putt well," Turnbull said. "Clare does very well off the tee, but her putting is superb. The 24 putts in 18 holes is phenomenal."

"I get up and down a lot which really helps me but I work very hard on my putting," said Dolan, a 15-year-old sophomore.

Ability is obviously a factor in golf as in any other sport, but concentration in this game is paramount. Ability may not be the deciding factor in who wins the Maryland state championship today and Friday at the University of Maryland. All the players will have the ability, but not all will be able to concentrate on every shot of the 36-hole tournament.

Dolan began playing golf four years ago under the tutelage of her father and older brother. She has also taken private lessons and this is her first year of high school golf, although she played in junior high school and in junior tournaments during the summer.

"Clare never loses her concentration during a round," said Turnbull. "For most of us, golf is exercise, relaxation, and can be somewhat competitive, depending on who you play with. When Clare goes on that course, she's all business."

"The game came very naturally to me," she said. "I felt comfortable with the swing and stances when I started and then came all the practice."

Dolan practices just about every day whether it is at a range or playing on a course. She takes a break from golf in the winter to play basketball, but come spring, she's right back on the golf course.

"She's a student of the game, not just a player per se," Turnbull said. "A player will just go out, tee it up and play. Clare goes out with a purpose. Her effort is earnest and when she hits the ball, she knows where she wants to put it. Most times that's where it ends up."

Her 72 in the county team championship was the second best round of the day. Cobby Webb of Paint Branch shot an even par 71 (from the men's tees). Dolan's cumulative average for the season was 76 and she has to be considered in contention for the state title.

"I'm not really thinking anything different about the states," Dolan said. "I'll treat it just like any other round of golf."

Being the lone girl on a boys' team could present a problem, but none exist between Dolan and her teammates.

"I knew all the guys on the team because we played together in the summer," said Dolan. "Without a doubt there was no worry about being on the team."

"Clare doesn't walk around with her nose in the air saying, 'I'm the best,'" said Turnbull. "Everyone accepts and doesn't begrudge her ability. She's treated as just one member of the team."

When a 15-year-old shoots one-under par rounds, a professional career has to be considered a possibility. Both Turnbull and Dolan think it is possible but both agree it is still some time away.

"The probability is high that she could play professionally, but it is sheer nonsense to say that she will," said Turnbull. "She definitely has the ability but she may find something that she likes more than golf. With her determination and drive, she will be good at whatever she does."

"I would definitely like to try it," Dolan said of professional golf. "But it's a long way away to start thinking about it, that's the way I look at it."

Davis Medalist in Women's Amateur

Cindy Davis of Crofton shot 70 to win the qualifying medal in the 62nd Maryland State Golf Association Women's Amateur yesterday at Bretton Woods.

Davis, 20, a junior at Furman University and reigning Middle Atlantic champion, was two under women's par.

Karen Jones, the defending champion and automatic qualifier, will play Leslye Johnson of Green Hill in today's opening first-round match at 10:03 a.m. The tournament runs through Friday.

Jones, Davis Gain in Amateur

Special 1 to The Washington Post

Defending champion Karen Jones of Argyle was two under par for 13 holes in defeating Leslye Johnson, 6 and 5, yesterday in the championship flight of the Maryland State Golf Association Women's Amateur at Bretton Woods Country Club.

Cindy Davis, who won the qualifying medal Tuesday, defeated Dierdre Anderson on the 20th hole. After pulling even on the 18th, Davis, 20, from Crofton, won on the second playoff hole.

Jones, 20, a junior at Oklahoma State, led by five after nine holes.

She will face 15-year-old Claire Dolan, a 2-up winner over Angela Munno, at 9 a.m. today in the second round Davis will play Michelle McCall at 9:14.

In other first round matches, Sarah LeBrun defeated Beans Kelly, 2 and 1, and Kim Williams never trailed in beating Sharon Briggs, 3 and 2. LeBrun will play Williams at 9:07.

Pat Thompson of Cumberland defeated Joanne Smith, 5 and 4, and will play Jane Abood of Kenwood, a 2-up winner over Mary Ellen Fedor, at 9:21.

Jones, Davis Advance to Women's Final

Defending champion Karen Jones of Argyle sank a six-foot birdie putt on the 19th hole and beat Kim Williams of Bethesda yesterday in the semifinals of the Maryland State Golf Association Women's Amateur tournament at Bretton Woods.

Jones, 20, will play Cindy Davis of Crofton for the title today. The match will start at 9:28 a.m.

Davis, 20, this tournament's medalist and the Middle Atlantic Golf Association champion who plays for Furman University, birdied three of her first seven holes for a 4-up lead and eliminated 1979 champion Patty Thompson of Cumberland Country Club, 2 and 1, in the other semifinal.

For the 37 holes she needed to win two matches today, Jones was one under par in the 95-degree heat.

"I'm not that tired, just mentally exhausted," said Jones, who plays No. 3 on Oklahoma State's women's team. She finished 24th in the NCAA women's tournament this spring. "These young girls were trying to beat up on me today."

Jones parred the 18th hole in her morning quarterfinal for a 2-up victory over Clare Dolan, 15, of Montgomery Village.

In the afternoon, Williams, 19, birdied the third hole to go 1 up, then hit a magnificent long-iron second shot that stopped a foot from the cup at the par-4 fifth. That birdie gave Williams, a finalist in the women's district championship, a two-hole lead.

Jones appeared calm, however, and pulled even at the par-3 ninth when Williams three-putted.

Jones took the lead at the par-3 14th hole with par after Williams' tee shot stopped short of the green, she chipped up and missed a nine-foot putt.

Williams won the par-5 15th with a four-foot birdie putt and, after halving the next two holes, they came to the uphill par-5 18th tied.

Both Jones and Williams were just off the green in two shots. Jones chipped to five feet and Williams to eight feet. Both made their birdie putts to force the match to the first extra hole, a par-4.

Both hit good drives, Jones wedged to six feet and Williams to 17. After Williams missed her birdie putt, Jones curled in hers to win the match.

In morning quarterfinals, Williams beat Sarah LeBrun of Green Spring, 2 and 1; power-hitter Thompson defeated Jane Aboud of Kenwood on the 19th hole when Aboud hit her approach shot over the green; and Davis beat Michelle Mackall of Washingtonian, 5 and 4. Davis was one under par in her two matches.

Davis Wins Amateur Title

By Ben Gieser
Special to The Washington Post

Cindy Davis of Crofton withstood a back-nine challenge from defending champion Karen Jones of Argyle and scored a 2-and-1 victory for the championship of the 62nd Maryland State Golf Association women's amateur yesterday at Bretton Woods.

"It's hard to play against friends, but I really believe in playing the golf course," said Davis, 20, a resident of Bowie who plays No. 1 on the Furman women's team. "I don't really think of it as playing the person. That's when you make mistakes."

Davis made few mistakes in shooting one under par yesterday. She won the qualifying medal Tuesday with two-under-par 70, and now owns both the Middle Atlantic and Maryland State women's titles.

She knocked in a curling 25-foot putt for birdie 2 on the ninth hole for a 2-up lead, but Jones, the No. 3 player for Oklahoma State, sank a 50-foot chip shot for birdie at the 11th hole to pull within one.

Jones, who came from behind to win her semifinal match against Kim Williams, then evened the match with birdie at the par-4 13th when Davis hit her tee shot into rough, her second shot into sand, and took bogey.

one foot of the hole, earned a tying par, and remained 1 up.

The match came to a close at the par-4 17th hole, Davis two-putting from 16 feet for a par while Jones rimmed a par putt from 10 feet after going over the green in two.

Then came the first of what Davis said were the two key shots of the match. She hit a nine iron to within five feet of the cup on the par-3 14th and sank the birdie putt to regain a 1-up lead.

Davis hit another high-quality shot after dumping her tee shot into a green-side bunker, 50 feet from the hole at the par-3 16th. She opened the face of her sand wedge and hit the ball from a downhill lie to within

Davis Repeats as Area's Top Woman Golfer for '82

on Golf

Cindy Davis of Crofton Country Club is back on top in the 1982 Journal ranking of area women golfers. The Furman University junior regained the top spot she held in 1980 when she won the first of two consecutive Middle Atlantic championship to earn top ranking by the Washington Star's Dick Slay.

This year Davis won the Maryland State championship, was runner-up and top area player in the Middle Atlantic Amateur (won by Kandi Kessler of Charlottesville, Va.) and went to the second round of the U.S. Women's Amateur.

Last year when the Journal ranked the women only by their handicap ratings, Davis and Karen Jones, Oklahoma State junior from Argyle, shared the top rating with handicaps of two.

Ranked second is Amy Geithner, Wake Forest graduate from Fairfax lost an extra-hole semifinal match to Jones in the Maryland State.

Jane Abood of Kenwood, a Penn State senior, fills the fifth spot. She was runner-up to her sister, Liza, in the Payne Trophy and a quarterfinalist in the Maryland State. She also qualified for the U.S. Women's Open and Amateur championships.

Angela Munno of Argyle, a senior in nuclear engineering at Maryland, ranks sixth. She had low gross in the Keefe Cup, tied for third in the Carpenter-Williams, and was low individual in the Middle Atlantic PGA Pro-Lady at Piney Branch with a score of 33-41 — 74. She also qualified for the U.S. Women's Amateur.

Liza Abood of Kenwood, who won the Payne Trophy and tied for fifth in the Carpenter-Williams, ranks seventh.

The eighth spot is filled by Michelle Mackall of Washingtonian. She won low individual prize in the Elizabeth Arden Charity Classic, was runner-up in the first flight of the Women's Western, and sixth in the Middle Atlantic. She also won her first matches in the North-South Amateur and the Maryland State.

Shawn McCullough of Tantallon is ranked ninth. She tied for first in the Carpenter-Williams with a 74 and lost a playoff to Kim Grace of Army Navy. She also had second low gross, a 75, in the Ladies Oldsmobile Open, and went to the quarterfinals of the District.

In the 10th spot is Arlene English, Congressional women's champion, who won the Oldsmobile event with both low gross 73 and low net 63.

Rating honorable mention are Grace, who won the Carpenter-Williams; Sharon Briggs and Diane Rankin of Montgomery Village, semifinalists in the District championship; Lorraine Elder of Army Navy, a quarterfinalist in the District who tied for eighth in the Payne Trophy; and Carol Davies-Lillie of Washingtonian, who tied for seventh in the Middle Atlantic.

Winners of Women's District Golf Association events this year: Interclub Team Championships, by divisions: 1. Congressional; 2. Bretton Woods; 3. International; 4. Army Navy; 5. Westwood; 6.

Class C Tournaments: York Flow-er Bowl, Kitty Lippitt; Corillum Cup, Esther Shimbarg; Torlinski Cup, Virginia Kreuzberg; Beckner Cup, Sue Ullman.

Class D Tournaments: Lenore Goldsmith Cup, Carolyn Gubley; Brooke Johns Cup, Gubley; Gable Cup, Vi Goode; Weisburg Cup, Ann Witkin.

Last week's summary of Montgomery-Prince George's Women's Golf Association tournaments inadvertently omitted the Brooke Johns Class B Cup in which Charlotte Kimmel won gross and Ellie McNally won low net.

Two holes-in-one reported last week make 11 reported since the Journal newspapers shoot-out at Kenwood on Oct. 23.

Carl B. Ward III of Tantallon, playing Bethesda for the first time as the guest of former District champion Harry Cain, birdied the first hole and followed with an ace on the 234-yard second, using a five-wood.

"After that sensational start," he recalled, "I shot my usual score of 86."

Others in the foursome were Bethesda assistant pro Terry Shaffer and Dave Kestel of Congressional. George W. Schaffner, 71, aced the 170-yard 15th hole at Greencastle with a three-wood.

He said afterward, "I was so excited that I took an eight on the next hole."

Cush Still Enjoys Competition

Even though Gerry Cush isn't winning golf championships like she used to more than 15 years ago, she still enjoys competing against usually much younger opponents.

"The only interest I've lost is in practicing," says the grand lady of area women's golf who has won each of the area's Big Three championships at least twice.

"I used to practice a lot to try to improve," the nine-time women's champion of Argyle Country Club recalls. "Now I sort of coast along enjoying the game and doing the best I can."

Cush's "best I can" is still very good. Last summer she was a valuable member of the Argyle team which won the Maryland interclub championship for the third time since 1976 and was runner-up to Congressional in the Women's District Division I team matches.

She won the 36-hole Cumberland Invitational and lost in the semifinals of the Argyle championship to the eventual winner, Angela Munno, nuclear engineering student at Maryland.

"She's a very consistent player with a very good short game," Munno says of Cush. "I especially admire her competitive spirit. You can never count her out of a hole because she never gives up."

Women's District tournament chairman Mary Lou Amatucci, also an Argyle member, calls Gerry Cush "a great gal."

"Everybody loves her," she says. "She lost some interest when her husband died, but it's very keen again." Frank Cush, who got his wife to give up tennis for golf shortly before they joined Argyle in 1951, died three years ago.

Argyle's golf pro, Kent Keith, says Cush doesn't hit the ball as long as she used to, "but she keeps it down the middle and comes through when she has to."

"Her short game is outstanding, especially her putting. She makes a valuable partner in team matches."

quickly at Argyle competing against the club's fine players of 30 years ago, including Georgia Mae McKeever, Betty Garber, Helen Konopa, Lucille Bush and others.

She says the game hasn't changed much, except that there weren't as many college players years ago because there weren't the scholarships they have today.

She won the Maryland women's championship in 1955, 1959 and 1961 and was qualifying medalist in 1960, the same year she won her first Middle Atlantic title. She won the Middle Atlantic again in 1968.
