Thurner Shoots 74 for Lead in Keefer Cup

By Ben Gieser
Special to The Washington Post

Pat Thurner of Congressional, who has played so little golf lately that, "I was afraid I was going to embarrass myself," shot net 74 (83-9-74) to take a one-shot lead after the first round of the 36-hole Women's District Golf Association's Keefer Cup yesterday at the Chevy Chase Club.

Joan Gould of Bethesda was second at 88-13-75, followed by Ellen McGowan of Springfield (87-11-76), Judi Enright of Army Navy (84-8-76) and Pressie Hoffman of the host club (89-13-76).

Thurner's 83 also tied her for the gross lead with Sheila Dagucon of Montgomery (83-3-80). Thurner, three-time Congressional women's champion, thought she was in a for a long day when she three-putted the first hole for a double bogey and went on to complete the front nine in 45.

But she birdied the 10th and 11th holes after hitting near-perfect 7-iron approach shots and shot a fine incoming 38 on a day when many players had problems with slick greens, high rough and difficult pin placements.

Defending champion Susan Fleming of Bretton Woods lost two balls in the rough and was out of the running with 97-9-88.

"I'm usually straight, but today I was all over the course," Fleming said.

Perennial contender Fran Schultz of Army Navy staggered in with 89-7-82. "I had a seven on a par-4 and a six on a par-3," Schultz said. "Just dumb thinking. I've never seen such scores."

Thurner has been playing less golf and enjoying it more. "I used to play a lot—four and five times a week," Thurner said. Now, because she helps her husband with his business, she said, "I'm lucky to play once a week."

McGowan Wins Keefer Cup In Playoff With Dagucon

By Ben Gieser
Special to The Washington Post

Ellen McGowan of Springfield parred the first hole of a playoff and defeated Sheila Dagucon of Gaithersburg to win the Women's District Golf Association's Keefer Cup yesterday at the Chevy Chase Club.

McGowan, using her 11 handicap, shot net rounds of 76 Wednesday and 77 yesterday to finish in a tie at net 153 with Dagucon, whose three handicap was the lowest and best of all participants.

On the playoff hole, the 361-yard, par-4 first hole, both golfers were just short of the green in two shots. McGowan hit a 40-foot wedge third shot one foot from the hole. Dagucon's third shot stopped 10 feet from the hole. Dagucon then missed her putt and tapped in for bogey. McGowan made her short putt for par and victory.

Because she has a higher handicap than Dagucon, McGowan was given a stroke on the playoff hole, but it was a stroke she did not need. She won outright.

"That was the best hole I played all day," said McGowan, 40, two-time and present women's club champion at Springfield Country Club.

McGowan opened this tournament Wednesday with birdie-par-birdie-par and then five-putted her fifth hole for quadruple-bogey eight. The slick greens and thick rough caused high scores for most. "These greens will drive you to drink," said Fran Schultz of Army Navy, who struggled both days.

Pat Thurner of Congressional, the first-day leader with 83-9-74, shot a 48 on the front nine yesterday, had a 91 gross and finished tied for fourth with net 156.

Dagucon, 35, who moved here 1½ years ago from Wilmington, N.C., shot the tournament's best gross round yesterday, a 76, and easily won that division with a 36-hole 159, followed by Carol Davies of Argyle, 88-78-166.

Joan Gould of Bethesda finished second net with 79-154, followed at 156 by Thurner, Carol Corrigan of Chevy Chase (78 yesterday), Opal Hyde of Indian Spring (77), Laura Miller of Bethesda (74) and Davies (73).

Ledbetter wins WDGA, eyes school, PGA Tour

By JOE GAMBATESE
Special to The Journal

Lois Ledbetter of Rockville and Lakewood Country Club is in Brentwood, Tenn., this week playing in the Women's Western National Amateur while contemplating her future and reflecting on how she won the Women's District Golf Association championship at Bretton Woods Rec Center Friday.

As a magna cum laude graduate of Alabama in finance, she is considering going back to school for a master's in business administration. She also is thinking about law school.

On the other hand, her success at golf tempts her to try to qualify for the Ladies PGA Tour. She shot 67 for medalist honors and was runner-up in the Southern Amateur championship in Daytona Beach, Fla., last month. Two weeks ago she finished fourth in the Eastern Amateur in Charlottesville, Va.

Ledbetter also has tested her game against the best of the women pros. In the U.S. Women's Open at Baltusrol two years ago, she qualified as an alternate. When Hall of Famer Sandra Haynie had to withdraw, Ledbetter took her place and was paired in the early rounds with the great Nancy Lopez and Beth Daniel.

After a nervous first nine holes, Ledbetter was able to hold her own against the pros. As a result, she has decided to try to qualify for this year's Open on July 13 in Boston, where most of the touring pros will be qualifying the day after the Du Maurier Classic in Quebec. The Open is scheduled for July 23-26 in Plainfield, N.J.

At Bretton Woods, Ledbetter had to come from behind on the back nine and survive a penalty on the 18th hole to win her first area major championship when her opponent, Karen Jones of Argyle, three-putted the first hole of a playoff.

After losing the first two holes, Jones, former District and Maryland State champion, won the third and fifth to square the match. She bogeyed the par-3 sixth to go 1 down, then won the eighth with a par, the ninth with a birdie 2 and the 10th with a par to take a 2-up lead.

Ledbetter regained the lead by winning three of the next four holes, including one birdie, on No. 11. Jones squared the match with a par on the short 16th, but went 1-down again on the next hole when her drive wound up behind a tree.

On the par-5 18th, Ledbetter got up and down from a greenside bunker and appeared to have halved the hole with a par, thus winning the match, 1 up.

The players had packed their bags in their car and were having lunch when officials notified them that Ledbetter had incurred a penalty on the final hole and lost it, and that the match was tied. They would have to continue extra holes at sudden death. Jones three-putted the first hole to lose the match.

The penalty involved a rake that had been left in the bunker where Ledbetter's ball lay, but not near the ball. Before playing her shot, she removed the rake, raking her footprints as she went. The penalty, loss of hole, was for raking her footprints before executing her shot. It violated the rule against testing the soil.

"In the heat of battle, it did not occur to me that I was violating a rule," Ledbetter said afterward. "If I had lost, I never would have forgiven myself."

Ledbetter, Jones Win Semifinals

To Play Final Today

By Ben Gieser
Special to The Washington Post

Lois Ledbetter of Lakewood, the qualifying medalist, and Karen Jones of Argyle, a former winner of this tournament, won semifinal matches yesterday to reach today's final of the Women's District Golf Association Championships at Bretton Woods. The 18-hole final will begin at 9:40 a.m.

Ledbetter, helped by a one-under-par effort on the front nine, took a 4-up lead after 10 holes and held off Brenda Seymour of Chantilly, 2 and 1.

Jones, playing Judi Enright of Army Navy, rallied from 2 down with two holes to play with pars on the 17th and 18th holes, then won on the first extra hole.

Ledbetter, who recently graduated from the University of Alabama, where she played No. 1 on the women's team, had a 4-up lead cut to just two holes when Seymour made a 15-foot putt for winning par at the 15th hole. After halving the 16th hole in par, Seymour had a chance to reduce the lead to one at the par-4 17th hole, but missed a six-foot birdie putt that would have sent the match to the 18th hole.

Seymour, 27, 1985 WDGA champion who plays out of Hidden Creek, said she was having problems hitting her iron shots.

"Overall, I think it was a tempo problem," she said.

Jones, 25, former winner of this tournament and the Maryland Women's Amateur, lost the 12th and 13th holes to fall 2 down to Enright, recent winner of the WRC Cup.

Jones parred the 17th hole to pull within one hole. She parred the 18th hole and, when Enright three-putted for bogey, missing a five-foot putt that would have won the match, it went an extra hole.

On the par-4 first playoff hole, Jones was just short of the green in two shots and Enright was in the sand in front of the green. Jones pitched 10 feet from the pin. Enright failed to get out of the bunker with her first shot and barely got on the green with her second. She then hit her fifth shot, a long putt, and the ball stopped short of the hole.

Upstart Cassidy upsets Davies in WDGA play

In a first round overloaded with lopsided matches, Carlene Cassidy from Manor Country Club turned in the only legitimate upset in the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association championship yesterday at Bretton Woods.

Cassidy, a 22-year-old recent graduate of Providence College, defeated perennial contender Carol Davies of Argyle 6 and 5. But that wasn't the widest margin of victory in the eight opening matches in the championship flight.

Sharon Briggs of Montgomery Village zapped Karen Elder of Army Navy 8 and 6, and medalist Lois Ledbetter and Arlene English, the medal runner-up from Congressional, both won by 7 and 6.

Ledbetter, from Lakewood, was three over par in ousting Donna Herbert of Hidden Creek. English defeated Lynda Bindseil from Montgomery Village.

Today's matches, beginning at 9:42 a.m., pit Ledbetter against Shawn McCullough of Woodlawn, Brenda Seymour of Hidden Creek against Cassidy, English against Judi Enright of Army Navy and Karen Jones of Argyle against Briggs.

Ledbetter wins WDGA opener

Lois Ledbetter of Lakewood C. C. got off to a good start toward winning her first major championship at Bretton Woods Recreation Center yesterday. The top women's player at the University of Alabama, from which she recently graduated, defeated Donna Herbert of Henson Creek, 7 and 6, in the first round of the Women's District Golf Association championship after winning the qualifying medal with a 2-over-par 74. She is the only competitor with a plus handicap, 1.

At 9:28 this morning she will face Shawn McCullough, a 5-handicapper at Woodlawn, who beat Cami Berher of Montgomery Village, 3 and 1.

Brenda Seymour of Hidden Creek, the 1985 champion, got by Judy Nelson of Army Navy, 5 and 4, and will meet Ledbetter tomorrow in the semifinals if both win today.

Seymour's match today will be against Carlene Cassidy, a young 8-handicapper from Manor, who upset the veteran Carol Davies of Argyle, 6 and 5.

In the lower half of the bracket, Arlene English, Congressional, defeated Lynda Bindseil, Montgomery Village, 7 and 6; Fran Schultz, Army Navy, defeated her clubmate, Judi Enright, 1 up in 21 holes; former champion Karen Jones, Argyle, defeated Ellen McGowan, Springfield, 5 and 4, and Sharon Briggs, Montgomery Village, defeated Karen Elder, Army Navy, 8 and 6.

Defending champion Kathy Marren of Army Navy and Avenel is in Florida and is not defending her title.

All matches are played at scratch, without handicap.

Local golf

Lois Ledbetter and Brenda Seymour will meet today in a semifinal matchup in the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association championship. Ledbetter, representing Lakewood CC, was 3 over par and advanced with a 6-and-5 victory over Woodlawn's Shawn McCullough. Seymour, from Hidden Creek, was 1 under par with two birdies while winning 7 and 6 from Manor's Carlene Cassidy. Ledbetter and Seymour met in the 1985 semifinals, Seymour winning en route to the title. The other semifinal matches Judi Enright of Army Navy against Karen Jones of Argyle.

By Ben Gieser

Special to The Washington Post

Lois Ledbetter of Rockville, the qualifying medalist, and Brenda Seymour of Chantilly, the 1985 champion, easily won in yesterday's quarterfinals of the Women's District Golf Association championships at Bretton Woods.

Seymour was 1 under par and beat Carlene Cassidy of Manor, 7 and 6. Ledbetter played "steady" 3-over-par golf and eliminated Shawn McCullough of Woodlawn, 6 and 5.

That sets up a semifinal match between the two, starting at 10:18 this morning, followed by WRC Cup winner Judi Enright of Army Navy against former WDGA winner Karen Jones of Argyle.

Enright edged Arlene English of Congressional, 1 up, in her quarterfinal, and Jones bested Sharon Briggs of Montgomery Village, 5 and 3.

Ledbetter, 23, of Lakewood Country Club, just graduated magna cum laude in corporate finance and Spanish at the University of Alabama, where she played No. 1 on the women's team. She was medalist and runner-up in the recent women's Southern Amateur, and runner-up in last year's Western Amateur.

Yesterday she said she "did not play great, but I played steady. She [Seymour] is a good player. It's going to be a good match."

Seymour, of Hidden Creek, who won this tournament two years ago, got her second birdie of the match at the ninth hole for a 6-up lead. She said she hit her driver and irons "very well, but my putting was not superb."

To Play Final Today

By Ben Gieser
Special to The Washington Post

Lois Ledbetter of Lakewood, the qualifying medalist, and Karen Jones of Argyle, a former winner of this tournament, won semifinal matches yesterday to reach today's final of the Women's District Golf Association Championships at Bretton Woods. The 18-hole final will begin at 9:40 a.m.

Ledbetter, helped by a one-under-par effort on the front nine, took a 4-up lead after 10 holes and held off Brenda Seymour of Chantilly, 2 and 1.

Jones, playing Judi Enright of Army Navy, rallied from 2 down with two holes to play with pars on the 17th and 18th holes, then won on the first extra hole.

Ledbetter, who recently graduated from the University of Alabama, where she played No. 1 on the women's team, had a 4-up lead cut to just two holes when Seymour made a 15-foot putt for winning par at the 15th hole. After halving the 16th hole in par, Seymour had a chance to reduce the lead to one at the par-4 17th hole, but missed a six-foot birdie putt that would have sent the match to the 18th hole.

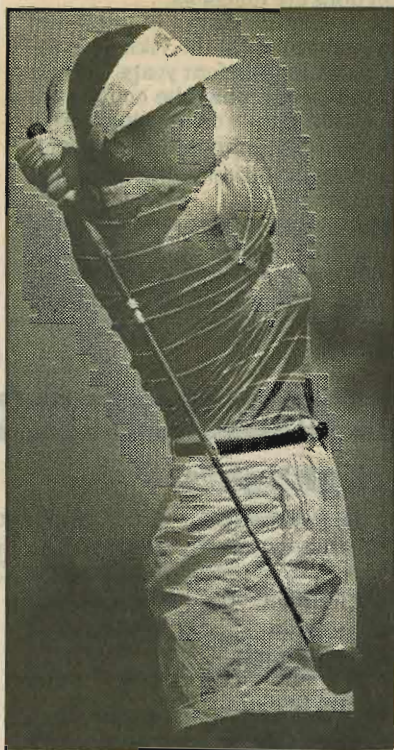

Seymour, 27, 1985 WDGA champion who plays out of Hidden Creek, said she was having problems hitting her iron shots.

"Overall, I think it was a tempo problem," she said.

Jones, 25, former winner of this tournament and the Maryland Women's Amateur, lost the 12th and 13th holes to fall 2 down to Enright, recent winner of the WRC Cup.

Jones parred the 17th hole to pull within one hole. She parred the 18th hole and, when Enright three-putted for bogey, missing a five-foot putt that would have won the match, it went an extra hole.

On the par-4 first playoff hole, Jones was just short of the green in two shots and Enright was in the sand in front of the green. Jones pitched 10 feet from the pin. Enright failed to get out of the bunker with her first shot and barely got on the green with her second. She then hit her fifth shot, a long putt, and the ball stopped short of the hole.

Golf championship rematch set today

By JOE GAMBATESE
Special to The Journal

Lois Ledbetter and Brenda Seymour will meet again in the semifinals of the Women's District Golf Association championship at Bretton Woods today, two years after their first confrontation in the semifinals at International, when Seymour beat Ledbetter. The next day Seymour beat Sharon Briggs of Montgomery Village for the title.

Ledbetter, top woman player at Alabama, from which she recently graduated, is playing better and confident of squaring the score with the Virginia former champion in today's match. She was a qualifying medalist by two strokes over Seymour with a 74 and won big in her first two matches.

Ledbetter beat Donna Herbert, a clubmate of Seymour at Hidden Creek, 7 and 6, Tuesday, and Shawn McCullough of Woodlawn, 6 and 5, yesterday. She plays out of Lakewood Country Club in Rockville.

Seymour advanced to the semifinal by disposing of Carlene Cassidy of Manor, 7 and 6.

In the lower bracket, Karen Jones of Argyle, the 1980 District champion and 1981 Maryland State champion, faces another Virginian, Judi Enright of Army Navy. Victories by Ledbetter and Jones today would set up an all-Montgomery County final tomorrow.

After making the turn even against Briggs without ever having had the lead, Jones won five straight holes, beginning with No. 11, to win the match, 5 and 3. She has played well at Bretton Woods, where she was runner-up to Cindy Davis in the 1982 Maryland State championship. To get to the final against Davis, Jones beat Kim Williams of Bethesda, who is now on the Ladies PGA Tour, in a match that went 21 holes.

Ledbetter, who has the potential to play on the ladies' tour, was medalist and runner-up recently in the Women's Southern Amateur in Daytona Beach, Fla. The final match went 37 holes. She also finished fourth in the Eastern Amateur in Charlottesville, Va., last week.

Ledbetter to play Jones for title

THE WASHINGTON TIMES

Former champion Karen Jones found it hard to believe she's in the finals of the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association championship, after scoring 11 over par in yesterday's semifinals.

"I almost don't feel like showing up tomorrow, after an 83," said the 25-year-old from Argyle.

Jones' opponent is Lois Ledbetter, who hasn't been at the top of her game so far this week at Bretton Woods Recreation Center in Seneca, Md. They meet for the first time in match play at 9:40 this morning.

Yesterday, Ledbetter, 23-year-old medalist from Lakewood CC, won three of the first five holes and outlasted 1985 titlist Brenda Seymour of Hidden Creek 2 and 1.

Ledbetter was two over par for the 17 holes. She missed six straight greens on the back side and bogeyed three in a row, but at least she cashed a couple early birdie chances.

Jones, the 1980 champion at age 18, trailed by two holes with two to play against Army Navy's Judi Enright.

WDGA final an all-county affair

Karen Jones, Lois Ledbetter win semifinals

By JOE GAMBATESE
Special to The Journal

Karen Jones of Argyle Country Club seeks her third major title and Lois Ledbetter of Lakewood her first when the two former collegians tee off for the championship of the Women's District Golf Association at Bretton Woods Rec Center at 9:40 this morning.

Jones, who played for Oklahoma State, won the District title over her home course in 1980 and the Maryland State championship in 1981 after being runner-up in 1980 and again in 1982.

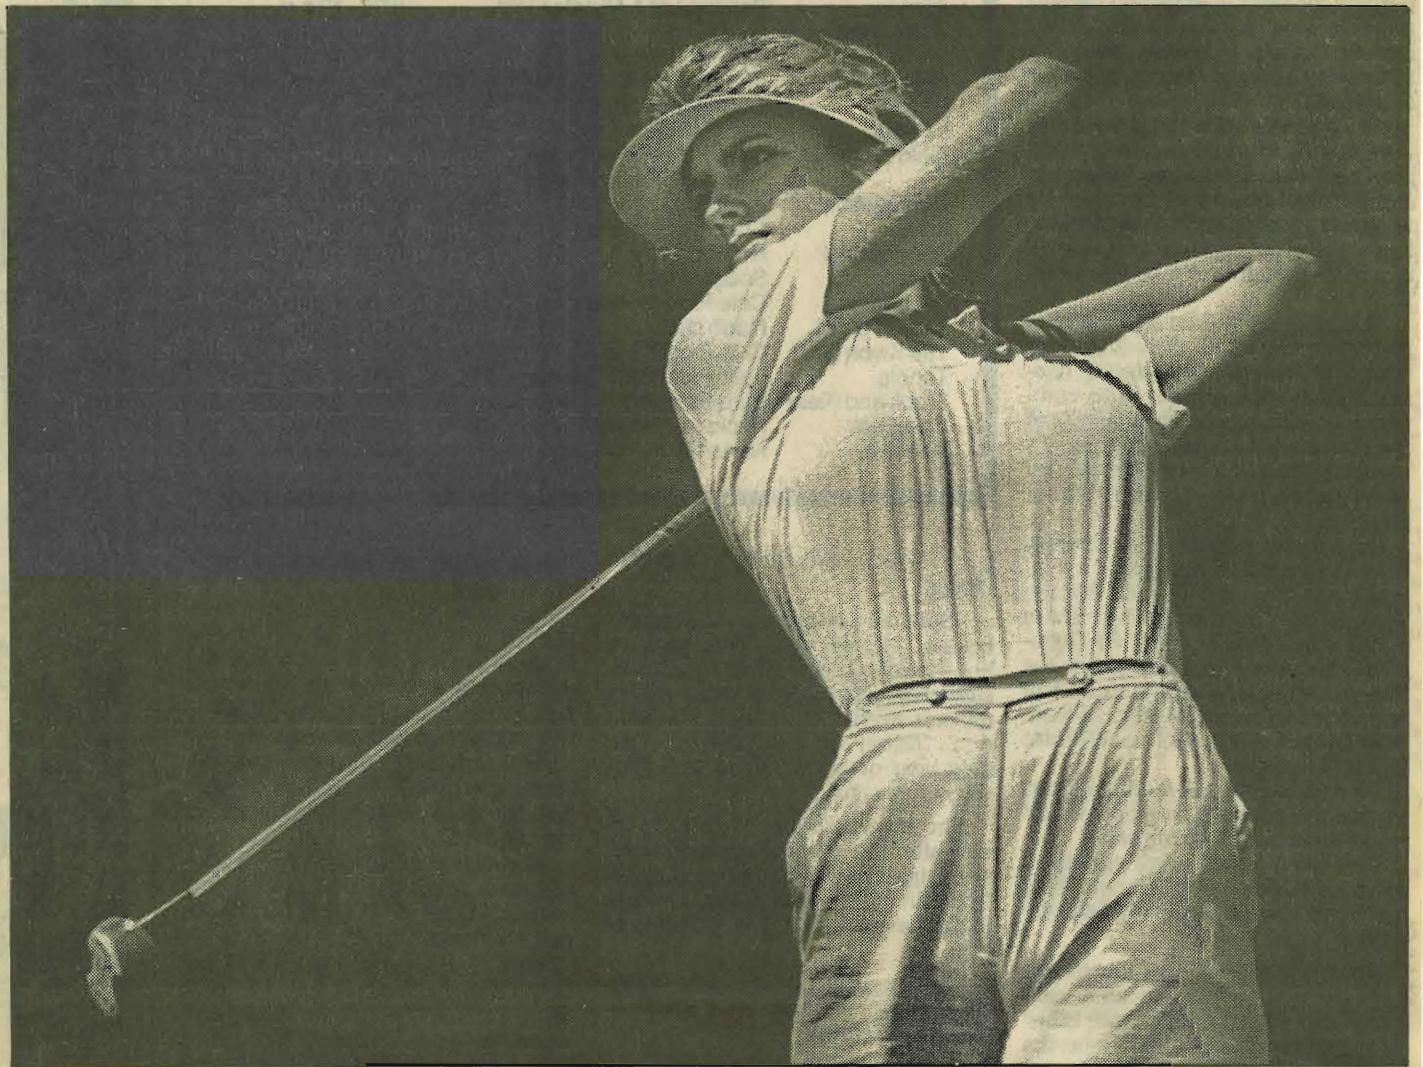

Employed by a Washington law firm to help represent athlete clients, Jones, 25, has not played much competitive golf this year, and it showed in her match yesterday against Judi Enright of Army Navy.

She played the front nine in 44, including two double-bogeys, and was lucky to be even. She lost the 12th and 13th holes to pars to go 2-down and had to sink a 15-foot downhill putt on the 16th to keep from losing the match and remain 2-down with two holes to play.

Jones stayed alive by winning No. 17 with a routine par after Enright came out too strong from a greenside bunker. She appeared to be doomed when both reached the green of the par 5 18th hole in regulation. Both had putts of about 50 feet, with Jones away. She lagged her putt to about 5 feet from the hole and Enright put hers just inside Jones.

When Jones holed her putt and Enright's rolled by the right edge of the cup, the match was even for the first time since the 11th hole. Jones then won the first extra hole, her third consecutive hole, when Enright took two to get out of a bunker fronting the green.

This is the second time Jones has reached the final of a major tournament at Bretton Woods. In 1982, she was runner-up to Cindy Davis in the Maryland State championship after beating Kim Williams of Bethesda, now on the Ladies PGA Tour, in a 21-hole semifinal match.

Ledbetter, an academic All-America and top woman player at Alabama, from which she recently graduated, won the first two holes with par-birdie and was never in trouble in her match against the 1985 champion, Brenda Seymour of Hidden Creek. She won the fifth hole with a par after both birdied the par 5 fourth and made the turn 3-up. She scored 35, 1-under-par, to Seymour's 39.

Ledbetter, who shot a 67 to win the medal in the recent Southern Amateur, went 4-up with a par on No. 10, but lost the 11th to a birdie. She went 4-up again with a par at the 12th, but lost the 13th to another Seymour par to remain 3-up with 5 holes remaining. Seymour holed an 8-foot putt for par to cut Ledbetter's lead to 2-up at the 15th. But Ledbetter hung on to halve the 16th and 17th with pars and win the match, 2 and 1.

Two years ago, Seymour beat Ledbetter in the semifinals on her way to winning the championship at International Town and Country Club in Virginia.

Last year's winner, Kathy Marren of Avenel, was unable to defend her title because of final exams at Florida Atlantic University in Boca Raton, Fla. She expects to be back home next month and will compete in the Maryland State Championship July 14-17 at Suburban Club in Baltimore.

LOCAL GOLF

Ledbetter survives penalty

THE WASHINGTON TIMES

Lois Ledbetter is in Nashville, Tenn., today qualifying for this week's Women's Western Golf Association Amateur championship.

The tall 23-year-old from Lakewood Country Club in Rockville carried with her a new title and a heightened awareness of a basic rule of golf.

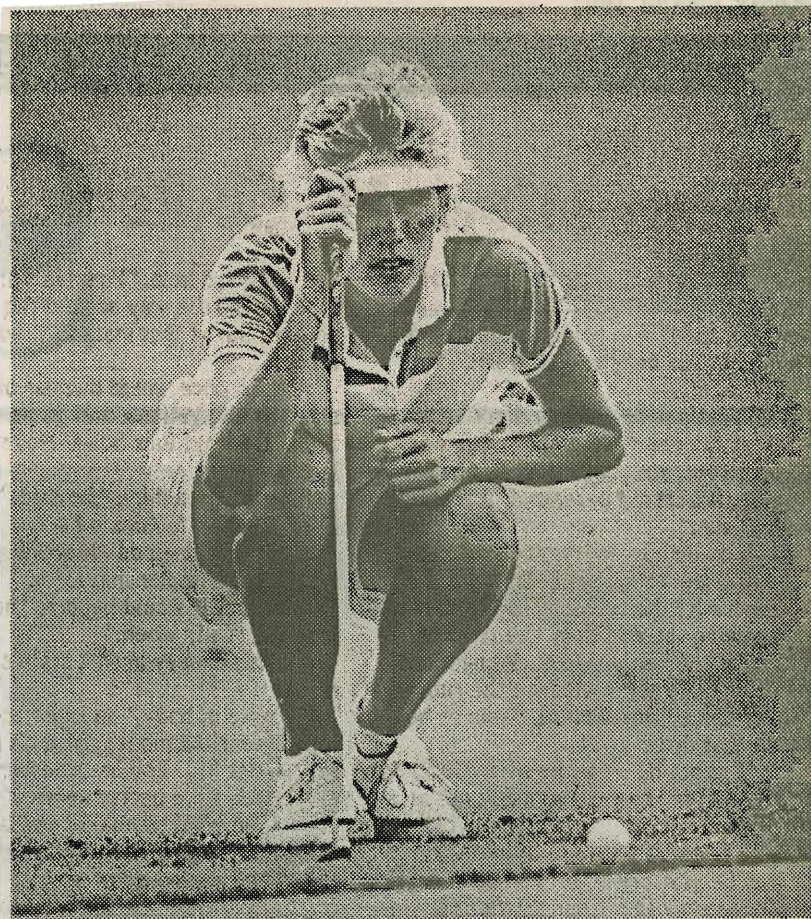

Ledbetter won the Women's District of Columbia GA championship Friday at Bretton Woods Recreation Center, 1 up in 19 holes against Karen Jones of Argyle. Except for a penalty, the final would have lasted the customary 18 holes.

Leading 1 up playing the par-5 18th, Ledbetter found the right bunker on her second shot, near where someone had left a rake in the sand. Ledbetter retrieved the rake and unthinkingly used it to smooth her footprint before addressing her ball.

Penalty for testing surface of sand before the stroke: loss of hole.

Instead of apparently halving the hole in par 5 and preserving the 1 up margin, Ledbetter was forced overtime. But Jones three-putted for bogey 5 on the first extra hole and Ledbetter won with regulation par 4.

Penalty Can't Stop Ledbetter From Winning District Golf

By Ben Gieser

Special to The Washington Post

Lois Ledbetter of Rockville appeared to have beaten Karen Jones of Rockville, 1-up after 18 holes, for the Women's District Golf Association championship yesterday at Bretton Woods. But five minutes after the match, the referee determined that Ledbetter had broken a rule on the 18th hole. The penalty she was assessed to even the match and Ledbetter and Jones were called back to the course to continue.

Ledbetter parred the first playoff hole to win when Jones three-putted and bogeyed.

In regulation, Ledbetter, of Lakewood Country Club, won the 17th hole in the see-saw match to take a 1-up lead.

Playing the par-5 18th, Ledbetter hit her second shot into the sand trap in front of the green. Someone had left a rake in the bunker. Before she played her third shot, Ledbetter took the rake—which was not near her ball—from the trap, raking away her footprints as she went.

"I should have spotted it when it occurred," said match referee Joan Coffman. "You can't touch the ground in the hazard with a club or otherwise before the shot."

Jones, a former winner of this tournament and the Maryland Women's Amateur, did not see the infraction and appeared to have lost the match on that hole after Ledbetter matched her par.

Five minutes later, Jones was back in the match when Coffman called the penalty. "I asked her [Ledbetter] if she had done it and she said 'Yes,'" Coffman said.

Ledbetter, who kept her composure after the infraction by hitting two excellent shots and making par said: "I made a mistake and I deserved to lose the hole. That's the rule. I know that's a rule, but in the heat of battle, it did not occur to me. If I had lost, I never would have forgiven myself."

Carol Davies of Argyle beat Fran Schultz of Army Navy, 2 and 1, to win the championship consolation; Rita Chadwick of Lakewood beat Pam Smyth of Congressional, 2 and 1, to win the first flight; Pat Zirkle of Army Navy beat Lois Finley of Kenwood, 2 and 1, to win the second flight; the third-flight winner was Timmie Weisbaum of Westwood, who beat Dottie Bennett of International, 2 and 1; and Kay Tyler of Kenwood beat Sally Finneran of Army Navy, 3 and 2, to win the fourth flight.

Ledbetter wins WDGA, eyes school, PGA Tour

By JOE GAMBATESE
Special to The Journal

Lois Ledbetter of Rockville and Lakewood Country Club is in Brentwood, Tenn., this week playing in the Women's Western National Amateur while contemplating her future and reflecting on how she won the Women's District Golf Association championship at Bretton Woods Rec Center Friday.

As a magna cum laude graduate of Alabama in finance, she is considering going back to school for a master's in business administration. She also is thinking about law school.

On the other hand, her success at golf tempts her to try to qualify for the Ladies PGA Tour. She shot 67 for medalist honors and was runner-up in the Southern Amateur championship in Daytona Beach, Fla., last month. Two weeks ago she finished fourth in the Eastern Amateur in Charlottesville, Va.

Ledbetter also has tested her game against the best of the women pros. In the U.S. Women's Open at Baltusrol two years ago, she qualified as an alternate. When Hall of Famer Sandra Haynie had to withdraw, Ledbetter took her place and was paired in the early rounds with the great Nancy Lopez and Beth Daniel.

After a nervous first nine holes, Ledbetter was able to hold her own against the pros. As a result, she has decided to try to qualify for this year's Open on July 13 in Boston, where most of the touring pros will be qualifying the day after the Du Maurier Classic in Quebec. The Open is scheduled for July 23-26 in Plainfield, N.J.

At Bretton Woods, Ledbetter had to come from behind on the back nine and survive a penalty on the 18th hole to win her first area major championship when her opponent, Karen Jones of Argyle, three-putted the first hole of a playoff.

After losing the first two holes, Jones, former District and Maryland State champion, won the third and fifth to square the match. She bogeyed the par-3 sixth to go 1 down, then won the eighth with a par, the ninth with a birdie 2 and the 10th with a par to take a 2-up lead.

Ledbetter regained the lead by winning three of the next four holes, including one birdie, on No. 11. Jones squared the match with a par on the short 16th, but went 1-down again on the next hole when her drive wound up behind a tree.

On the par-5 18th, Ledbetter got up and down from a greenside bunker and appeared to have halved the hole with a par, thus winning the match, 1 up.

The players had packed their bags in their car and were having lunch when officials notified them that Ledbetter had incurred a penalty on the final hole and lost it, and that the match was tied. They would have to continue extra holes at sudden death. Jones three-putted the first hole to lose the match.

The penalty involved a rake that had been left in the bunker where Ledbetter's ball lay, but not near the ball. Before playing her shot, she removed the rake, raking her footprints as she went. The penalty, loss of hole, was for raking her footprints before executing her shot. It violated the rule against testing the soil.

"In the heat of battle, it did not occur to me that I was violating a rule," Ledbetter said afterward. "If I had lost, I never would have forgiven myself."

Flight results:

Championship consolation: Carol Davies, Argyle defeated Fran Schultz, Army Navy, 2 and 1.

Lois Ledbetter goes pro

Lois Ledbetter of Rockville and Lakewood Country Club has turned professional and will compete as a professional in the U.S. Women's Open, which starts tomorrow at the Plainfield (N.J.) C.C.

"I want to find out if I can be a success on the Ladies PGA Tour," said Ledbetter, the 1987 Women's District champion and No. 1 player at Alabama, from which she graduated this year as a three-time academic All-American.

The 5-foot 10½-inch winner of the Bear Bryant athlete-of-the-year award at Alabama — and who has considered graduate studies in law or finance — said she can always go back to school if she does not succeed as a pro or doesn't like the life of a tour player.

Cindy Davis, winner of the women's amateur Triple Crown in regional golf, who plays at Prince Georges C.C., tried the pro tour but decided that the life of a tour player was not for her. Her application for reinstatement as an amateur has been approved by the USGA, but she has not picked it up. She is studying for a masters degree in business administration at Maryland.

"I wouldn't want to be sitting at a desk in the years ahead and wonder if I could have made it on the tour. I just have to find out. School will always be there when I want it," Ledbetter said.

Ledbetter, who won three straight women's championships at Lakewood, has shown signs of brilliance on the golf course. She shot a 67 to win medalist honors and was runner-up in the recent Women's Southern Amateur.

In the Women's Western Amateur, she lost her first match but won the championship consolation.

Last year Ledbetter qualified for the U.S. Women's Amateur in Santa Cruz, Calif., but lost her first match. She finished second in the Women's Western. She won the prestigious Payne Cup, a 36-hole scratch competition played at Congressional.

The highlight of her golfing career probably occurred two years ago at the U.S. Women's Open at Baltusrol in Springfield, N.J.

She got into the championship as an alternate for Hall of Fame star Sandra Haynie, who had suffered a disability that forced her to withdraw. Playing in Haynie's place, she was paired with two LPGA superstars, Nancy Lopez and Beth Daniel.

rally experienced a slight case of jitters. Even so, she shot two rounds of 79 and 75 and missed the 36-hole cut by only three strokes.

Ledbetter shot 75 in Boston last week to qualify for this week's U.S. Open. Kim Williams of Bethesda, who has started to win money on the tour, shot 79 and missed qualifying.

Following the Open, Ledbetter will test her game in two tournaments on the Futures Tour, the women's second pro tour. One will be in Jamesburg, N.J., Monday and Tuesday. The other will be in Wichita, Kan., Aug. 24-26.
