Haas Hangs On, Grabs Keefer Cup by Stroke

By Ben Gieser
Special to The Washington Post

Randi Haas of Indian Spring, playing in her first Keefer Cup, had a shaky finish but emerged with a one-stroke victory in the 64th edition of the Women's District Golf Association event yesterday at Chevy Chase club.

Wednesday, Haas and Terry Jacobson of Woodmont each used her 13 handicap and shot 80 for net 67 to share the first-round lead.

Yesterday, Haas chipped in for birdie on her second hole and made five straight natural pars for a five-shot cushion over playing partner Jacobson after 14 holes. But Haas played her last two holes in double bogey; Jacobson parred both. Haas needed to make a testing three-foot putt on the final hole for her narrow victory. Haas finished with 68-135; Jacobson had 69-136.

"It was pretty intense, no doubt," said Haas, 26, of Poolesville, who manages a restaurant in Silver Spring. "At the 18th hole, my heart was pounding fast. It's still pounding."

Jacobson made things interesting, finishing par-par and coming close to forcing a playoff. Jacobson said Haas invited her to a future Indian Spring member-guest event before the tournament.

"She said, 'If you win, you're still invited,'" Jacobson said.

Beth Lenz of Washington Golf and Country Club shot the best gross round of the day, a 77, and finished with net 67 for third place at 143, followed by Corene Turner of Westwood and Peg Widicus of Army-Navy, both at 146.

Jacobson (80-82) won gross in a match of cards against Carol Davies (81-81) at 162.

Paula Fairley of River Bend, the defending champion and the winner in three of the past four years, was not entered.

Springfield's Phillips breathing easier after reaching WDCGA final

SON HEE Phillips dropped her shoulders as she shuffled off the 15th green at the Mount Vernon Country Club in Alexandria yesterday.

Her 12-foot putt had just rolled 11¾ feet before breaking right.

The match would have been over. Instead, it was Phillips' patience that ended.

She spotted a friendly face and said, "I want to go home."

After the next hole, she was on her way. But she has to return to Mount Vernon today for the finals of the Women's District of Columbia Golf Association's District Championship. She meets Nancy Gallagher of Crofton, Md., at 9:18 a.m. in the final of the match-play event.

Phillips ousted Linda Divall, playing on her home course, 3 and 2. Gallagher eliminated another Mount Vernon member, Shawn McCullough, 1 up. McCullough has won this event three of the last four years. "It's fun, but golf shouldn't be this mentally draining," said Phillips, who lives in Springfield and belongs to Army Navy Country Club. "I want to play golf for fun."

Winning isn't fun?

"Yeah, but I also feel for the losers," she said. "I've been there so many times."

Phillips said she has never qualified for the match-play rounds. However, Mount Vernon is a short course (5,411 yards from the red tees) and gives shorter hitters such as Phillips a chance.

Phillips has played well on the greens, consistently making four and five-foot putts. Yesterday, she was three holes up after nine. The match ended when Divall missed one of those four footers on the 16th hole.

Tuesday, Phillips eliminated defending champion Jennifer Lewis, 4 and 2.

A win would be Phillips' most prestigious title since learning the game in 1981. She quit for two years, however, as her scores stayed as high as her frustration level.

But then she took lessons from a club pro in San Francisco, who chopped her handicap from a 35 to a 14 in one year. He taught her a proper swing.

"It went from bad to good," Phillips said.

Now she's in position to win this WDCGA event. She'll feel more pressure today, but has a simple plan to deal with anxiety.

"I take a lot of deep breaths," she said. "Inhale, exhale."

McCullough knows what it's like to play in the final rounds. But she lost her chance at a fourth title when Gallagher two-putted from 50 feet on the 18th green. McCullough missed a 25-footer that would have forced a playoff.

McCullough is being transferred to Denver for two years and was hoping to leave on a high note. She'll play in the Virginias-Carolinas match July 10 in Richmond, but will play mostly in Colorado, where the thin air produces longer drives.

"Someone said that's a desperate move just to gain an extra 10 yards on my drives," said McCullough, a program manager for Hughes Aircraft.

"I would like to have won [the tournament]. But I haven't been able to practice much and that was in the back of my mind."

Phillips Goes Short, Edges Gallagher

By Ben Gieser

Special to The Washington Post

Son Hee Phillips of Springfield showed the value of a finely tuned short game as she defeated Nancy Gallagher of College Park, 3 and 2, to win the Women's District Golf Association championship yesterday at Mount Vernon Country Club.

Phillips was by far the shorter hitter at her deft pitches, chips and putts and Crofton's Gallagher, who was competing in her first WDGA event.

Phillips, with several of her Army Navy clubmates looking on, chipped in for a birdie at the sixth hole to go 3-up and had a five-hole lead at the turn.

Gallagher, a former University of Maryland student, rallied to win holes 10 and 11 and was in position to win a bird straight hole at the par-5 12th, but Phillips knocked in a long par putt for a halve to stay three ahead.

The match ended at the par-3 16th hole when both women had excellent tee shots eight feet from the pin and both made par.

"I don't have length, so chipping and putting, that's my usual strength," Phillips said.

Mimi Hoffman of Belle Haven defeated J.J. Mink of Mount Vernon, 4 and 3, to win the consolation. Other lights: 1, Debbie Simpson, Mount Vernon, defeated Ruth Ann Verell, Belle Haven, 2 and 1; 2, Judy Koenig, Indian Spring, defeated Clare Kelly, Mount Vernon, 4 and 3; 3, Cecilia Biava, Norbeck, defeated Judy Adams, International, 1-up; 4, Mary Mann, Mount Vernon, defeated Lorraine Baracker, Montgomery, 1-up.
