GOLF

Crosland Is Best in Women's Amateur Qualifying

By MITCH RUBIN

Special to The Washington Post

As a member of Chevy Chase's Columbia Country Club, Leland Beckel has studied almost every inch of the course, practicing from the men's white tees. At yesterday's U.S. Women's Amateur sectional qualifying, her preparation paid off: She shot a 3-over-par 73 to finish with the second-lowest qualifying score of the day, tied with Laura Hammond from Unionville, Pa.

Hammond and Beckel were bested by two-time Maryland amateur champion Mallory Crosland, who double-bogeyed No. 18 but still shot a 72 on a 6,009-yard course that plays to a par of 70. The women's tees at Columbia play to a par of 74 from 5,462 yards.

"I was hitting my driver pretty long and straight today," said Crosland, who is from

Chevy Chase. "This is a great end to the summer here. Now I just hope it carries over into the Amateur."

Thirty women competed for seven berths in the 98th U.S. Women's Amateur Championship, which will be played Aug. 11-16 at Barton Hills Country Club in Ann Arbor, Mich. There were 104 spots available for the 580 women that attempted to qualify at one of 18 sites during the past week. Forty players are exempt from sectional qualifying, completing the field at 144.

The U.S. Amateur consists of two days of stroke-play qualifying for 64 match-play spots. Beckel will be playing in her third U.S. Amateur (she also played in 1990 and '97 after spending 1991-94 as a pro and two years regaining her amateur status.) Hammond played in 1996 and Crosland will be playing in the event for the first time.

"I'm so excited to qualify, especially here," said Beckel, who qualified in Denver last year. "There are some pressures playing at your home course that I had to overcome. But I played it like I never saw the course before and it worked out all right."

Andrea Kraus, from Woodholme Country Club in Pikesville, Md., qualified for her sixth consecutive U.S. Amateur with a 74. Her highest finish at the Amateur was in 1995, when she took current U.S. Open champion Se Ri Pak to 18 holes in the second round of match play before losing, 1 up.

"I have to put my putting in order, but I'm playing better than I ever have," Kraus said.

The final three qualifiers were Kathryn Yarwood from Exton, Pa. (75), Anne Cardea from Midlothian, Va., and Terry-Anne Lacoste from Ottawa (77s; advanced after playoff hole).
